From the Director's Desk.....

'I cannot teach anybody anything, I can only make them think' said Socrates, and i quote. We at the Academy would strive and motivate the trainees to make these golden words of Socrates come true. The need of the hour is to create the opportunity for developing proactive and thinking Police Officer to deal with the enormous challenges that Indian Police are facing today, effectively.

The major challenge faced by National Police Academy is how to bridge the gap between lab and the land. Emphasis on simulation exercises, Inspections, Supervision of Grave Crimes, hands on training in investigation of Grave Crimes, Crimes against Women & Children, Economic Offences, Cyber Crimes and Terrorism might lessen the gap. More important is to bring a big change in the attitude, behaviour, procedural fairness and other ethical values in the working style of the members of the Indian Police Service.

I am sure that faculty of the Academy will rise up to the occasion in chiselling out a human face in Khaki.

 Subhas Goswami
